msg and Tricentis launch strategic partnership in the field of Continuous Testing and DevOps msg and Tricentis enter into strategic partnership, allowing them to offer their customers a comprehensive portfolio comprised of the Tosca Continuous Testing platform, consulting, implementation and the operation of Tosca. As a result, customers will have access to a more effective and more efficient testing process and significantly higher test automation rates.

Munich, November 08, 2018. IT consulting and system integration company msg and Tricentis GmbH, a company specializing in software testing tools, are joining forces in the market in the fields of Continuous Testing, DevOps and SAP testing. With Tosca, Tricentis is bringing a testing platform that has received numerous awards to the cooperation. msg, in turn, has access to a large team of test specialists who bring their sound knowledge of Tosca, as well as extensive experience with traditional testing and in Continuous Testing, DevOps and SAP testing to the table. Customers will thus benefit from integrated consulting, implementation and platform services, as well as from a professional msg partner team that can also assume operation of the Tosca Continuous Testing platform.

Rapidly advancing digitalization is forcing companies in all industries to develop, adapt and go live with their systems faster, with more agility and in shorter cycles. This makes Continuous Integration, Continuous Deployment and continuous DevOps even more important in an IT environment. Continuous Testing, however, requires a significant increase in test automation rates, as that is the only way to achieve high system quality in traditional and agile software development. “Tosca is already being successfully used by customers from almost every industry – especially, however, in SAP and non-SAP projects in the fields of insurance services and financial services,” explains Recardo Jackson, Head of the Test & Quality Management unit at msg. “This partnership will allow us to successfully expand our current collaboration with Tricentis and to work together to address the topic of Continuous Testing, which is an urgent issue for many of our customers.”

The test experts from msg will assist their customers with the implementation or integration of Tosca, while also advising them all the various topics related to software testing and lifecycle management. In addition to the pure deployment of Tricentis' Continuous Testing platform, the partnership also gives customers the opportunity to have msg handle their entire testing process, as a managed service. "With msg we have found a partner who can expertly advise customers about our comprehensive solution for software test automation, especially in an SAP environment, and can even operate the solution for them should the customer so desire. We want our collaboration to manifest itself into a long-term partnership that benefits our shared customers," says Martin Schröder, Senior Vice President of Tricentis and responsible for sales in the EMEA region.
